OSHA Report Card on Construction Non-Union Sites Increasingly More Deadly

A report by OSHA this spring showed that non-union construction sites account for an increasing number of fatalities in New York City as compared to union construction sites. While in the previous five years, 60 percent of the construction fatalities occurred on non-union sites, in 2012, 72 percent occurred on non-union sites. This forum will discuss the report and analyze the various reasons why this is happening, including what unions do to make union sites safer, and what needs to be done in the future.
